

INVITATION

John Donkerwoort

Soon I will turn 60. My wife Kiki and I would like to celebrate this with a select group.

We look forward to seeing you here on our estate.

We'll begin with a toast, followed by a delightful dinner. It promises to be an unforgettable evening!

INSTRUCTIONS MURDER MYSTERY TOUR 'THE UNINVITED GUEST'

Participants of Murder Mystery Game "The Uninvited Guest" can fully dress up in the style of their character if they wish. This is however, not mandatory. Players who choose to do so will have to provide their own outfits.

There are no costume items available on location.

- Murder Mystery Game "The Uninvited Guest" has a fixed script with ten characters or roles. All roles will always be portrayed, for any group size. In groups that do not consist of ten people or a multiple, it will be necessary to work with shared or double roles.
- For example, if you are with eight players, two roles remain "open". That means two players have to play two characters. They therefore have a double role.

If you are with more than ten players, there are more "actors" than roles. This means that roles have to be shared. For example, with 15 players, 5 players share a role with another player. This doesn't detract from the game and it is funny to see different interpretations of the same role.

- Murder mystery tour "The Uninvited Guest" is always played plenary with the entire group, regardless of the group size. The story is always depicted centrally and visibly for everyone. The game host ensures that anyone who wants to can step into the spotlights. Players who prefer to just observe and investigate are not obliged to do anything.
- In Murder Mystery Game "The Uninvited Guest" the identity of the perpetrator maintains secret for everyone until the end, including the players who play the role of the perpetrator. This way the game remains exciting for everyone.
